

The map displays the North Atlantic region, including the British Isles, Iceland, and the eastern coast of North America. Red dots represent sampling locations. A high density of dots is found along the coast of Norway and the British Isles, with several dots also located in the North Atlantic and near Iceland.